Austin Home Scene Of Coffee For Miss Diane Elkins

On Saturday morning, December 7, Miss Diane Elkins, bride-elect of Willis Manford Gooch III, was honored with a coffee at the home of Mrs. A. B. Austin with Mrs. Tom Rowlett as cohostess. The hour was from ten until eleven-thirty.

The hostesses, together with Miss Elkins and her mother, Mrs. W. C. Elkins, greeted the guests at the door, where a guest register was signed. The dining room table was overlaid with an imported ceru linen, embroidered cloth and was centered with an arrangement of yellow and white chrysanthemums with Florida Croton foliage. Flanking the floral centerpiece were burning yellow tapers in low silver candleholders. All the table appointments were in silver.

Presiding at the coffee service during the morning were Miss Anne Wrather and Mrs. Fred Schultz.

Miss Elkins chose to wear from her trousseau a Delphinium blue woolen sheath and at her shoulder she pinned a hostess gift corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Elkins was attired in a red sheer woolen dress and wore a gift corsage of white carnations.

The hostesses presented Miss Elkins two pieces of her chosen silver.

The guest list included Miss Carole Outland, Miss Marilyn Cohoon, Miss Anne Wrather, Misses Mary Anna and Cecelia Wallace, Miss Linda Maurine, Miss Sandy Fair, Miss Carole Quarterman, Mrs. Dan McNutt, Mrs. Clarence W. Herndon Jr., Mrs. Fred Schultz, Miss Kathleen Katterson, Mrs. Harry Sparks, Miss Mary Lassiter, Miss Ruth Lassiter, Mrs. Mary Bell Overbey, Mrs. Seburn White, Mrs. Henry Holton, Miss Marie Skinner, Miss Onnie Skinner, Mrs. Wallace Key, Mrs. Bob Overbey, Mrs. Donald Swann, Mrs. Don Overbey, Mrs. Richard Tuck, Mrs. Jesse Riley, Mrs. John Pasco, Miss Benita Maddox, Mrs. Benny Maddox, Mrs. Bill Barker, Mrs. Dick Sykes, Miss Andrea Sykes, Mrs. Vernon Shown, Mrs. Al Kipp, Mrs. Sam Crass, Mrs. Tommy Alexander, Mrs. Maurice Crass Jr., Mrs. Ed West, Mrs. R. L. Ward, Mrs. Maurice Crass Sr., Mrs. William Smith, Mrs. Don Gilbert, Mrs. Dennis Taylor and Mrs. Gus Robertson Sr.

Mr. & Mrs. Hughes Celebrate Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hughes, 1637 Farmer Ave., celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary with a reception at the Murray Woman's Club House, Sunday, December 8, from 1-4 p.m. Approximately 150 guests attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes were married December 7, 1913 at Penny, Kentucky by Rev. John Radd, Methodist minister of Murray. Mrs. Hughes was formerly Teille Ezell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Zack P. Ezell (deceased) of Kirksey, Kentucky. Homer O. Radford (deceased) of Kirksey, Ky., and Mrs. Clancy Waldrop, presently of Detroit, Michigan were the attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes have six children; Mrs. Cleve E. Cox, Independence, Virginia; H. L. Hughes, Norfolk, Virginia; Miss Martha Hughes, Murray; Joe Hughes, Hopkinsville; Miss Sue Hughes, Louisville; and Dr. Don Hughes, Murray; six grandchildren, Kaye and David Hughes, Norfolk, Virginia; Eddie, Bobby, and Carolyn Cox, Independence, Virginia; and Pamela Jo Hughes, Hopkinsville.

Bridal Luncheon For Miss Elkins Held Recently

The home of Mrs. H. C. Chiles on Elm Street was the scene of a delightful luncheon given on Saturday, December 7, at 1:00 p.m. by Mrs. Chiles and Mrs. Robert Gerald Humphreys of Hodgenville. The lovely occasion was to honor Miss Martha Diane Elkins whose wedding to Willis Manford Gooch III, will take place on December 22.

The guests were greeted by the hostesses with one nonore and her mother, Mrs. W. C. Elkins, receiving in the foyer.

Miss Elkins was attired in a tulle ensemble of olive green wool with an ice blue silk blouse of white silk. Mrs. Gus Robertson, maternal grandmother of the honoree, chose a blue woolen dress and each wore gift corsages of white carnations.

The luncheon was served buffet style and after Mrs. R. A. Stinker had asked the blessing the guests were seated at three large tables, each covered with imported cut-work linen cloths. The tables held centerpieces of graduated green net trussed with silver bells. Wedding bells of silver were hung over the bride's table and place cards daintily decorated with green net and miniature silver bells marked the places of the guests. The beauty of the occasion was further enhanced by lovely arrangements in the Christmas motif which were used at vantage points throughout the house.

An electric can opener was presented to the honoree as a gift from the hostesses.

Place cards were written for Miss Elkins, Mrs. W. C. Elkins, Mrs. Graves Sied, Mrs. Dewey Ragdale, Mrs. A. W. Russell, Mrs. O. C. Wells, Mrs. R. L. Ward, Mrs. Gus Robertson Jr., Mrs. Tommy Alexander, Mrs. Marvin Harris, Mrs. H. L. Oakley, Mrs. Gus Robertson Sr., Mrs. Dan McNutt, Mrs. Cordie Caldwell, Mrs. Stark Erwin, Mrs. R. A. Stinker of Greensburg, Mrs. Vester Mitchell and Misses Ann Beale Russell, Mary Keys Russell, Mary Joe Oakley, Linda Harris, and Rebecca Jo Robertson.

Dear Abby . . . A Meeting's In Order!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I married a woman who is "club happy". She joins everything she can get into — accepts offices, volunteers for committees and goes like a house afire six days a week. She keeps a date book in her purse and schedules herself for every hour. We have very little home life because she never has time to cook a meal or to spend an evening at home. Our phone rings constantly with her club business and she thinks this is popularity. When night comes she is so keyed up she has to take pills to sleep. Any suggestions?

HER HUSBAND

DEAR HUSBAND: Make an appointment with her for an emergency "State-Of-The-Family" meeting. Let the first order of business be your list of complaints with regard to her clubbing your marriage to a pulp. Only when she realizes that you won't stand for it will she ease off. Otherwise, YOU had better resign yourself to being last on her agenda forever.

DEAR ABBY: How about this? My brother's wife phoned me and said, "We have some Christmas gifts for you and your family. Come and get them." They have a car, too, and they live less than ten minutes from us. I didn't want any bad feelings, so I didn't tell her off, I just said, "Thank you," and never picked them up. Now she is mad anyway. What would you have done?

STUBBORN

DEAR STUBBORN: If you had been sincere in not wanting "bad feelings," you should have picked up the gifts and kept quiet.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, who is 14, was invited to a slumber party at a girl friend's house. There were 12 girls in all. Some boys crashed the party. As we understand it, the girls let them in and seemed to enjoy their company, but later on they got rowdy and more boys came, and the police had to be called. We later learned that the parents of the girl who gave the party did not sleep at home. They slept at some friend's home so the girls could have an extra bedroom. Our daughter is invited to another slumber party. Her father says she can't go. I say, if we call the mother of the girl who's giving it and she says they will be home, it's all right. Our daughter says if we call the mother it will be like saying we don't trust her. What do you say?

CONCERNED
DEAR CONCERNED: I say your daughter is lucky she didn't get a flat NO from both you and her Dad. I would not permit her to go unless I had the assurance of the mother that the parents would be at home. And even then, I'd think twice.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

CHAPTER 20

GORDON Bicknell was absent from school. Katharine Mason wondered. Playing hooky again or what?

She hadn't yet given the Bicknells the information about available remedial courses—she must see the principal some time today, she wasn't sure which schools were offering this year.

She finished taking the roll call and started the day's work. Before the last bell rang at three o'clock she had interrupted three fist fights, confiscated ten mouthfuls of illicit chewing gum, managed to check one bout of nervous giggling before it got out of hand, suffered the retelling of three very old and elementary jokes.

It was one of those days when she thought she ought to have had her head examined for having decided to be a schoolteacher. Of all things.

And during her lunch hour Lester Carey had approached her and asked her, in his Victorian-polite way, to go out with him on Friday night. To a very interesting lecture on the uses of psychology in teaching over at U.S.C.

Katharine said, "I'm so sorry, I have a date Friday night."

And found herself—astonishingly—thinking about Lieutenant Charles O'Connor with something approaching approval. Even warmth. The wolf in gorilla's clothing.

That O'Connor.

She collected her papers, went out to the car. Stopped at the market for a few items. Drove home, put groceries away tidily, changed into a housecoat after a shower, and with a glass of iced coffee at her elbow started to correct papers.

She had just finished washing her dinner dishes and was about to settle down with a library book, at seven-fifteen, when the phone rang.

"Oh, Miss Mason— a high breathless voice. "Please, was Gordon to school today? Oh, I forgot—this is Mrs. Bicknell—was he?"

"Why, no," said Katharine, startled and surprised. "Didn't you— Well, I did wonder if he was."

"He hasn't come home, see, and he always comes straight home, he's got orders about that, strict— His d-dad's just about wild—An if he wasn't to school, then it—it looks like he's—just run off—"

"Oh, dear," said Katharine. Inadequately. "But— Did he leave at the regular time, as if he was going to school?"

"Just like always— When he didn't come home— We didn't know what to think, and then—"

his d-dad— He's just wild— And we thought, find out if he was to school— An if he wasn't, we—"

"Good heavens," said Katharine. "Mrs. Bicknell, you'd better call the police. They'll surely find him, a ten-year-old couldn't just disappear—"

"Police? Well—but I don't know—"

"You'd better call them right away," said Katharine distinctly. Surely the man would realize that. "Listen, Mrs. Bicknell, hang up now and then call the police. He can't be far away, they'll find him." She hung up herself.

But Gordon—in his funny nifty state— A boy from an ordinary, fairly good home—had shaken his little world enough to make him run away from home?

Katharine thought, It could be natural—nothing to do with Paul Brandon's murder. Difficulties at school, and with the other kids—the upset of moving to a new neighborhood—and losing the only new friend he had managed to make.

And then she went suddenly cold, and she thought, If he did know something—And if Paul's murderer knew he knew—

Was Gordon down a hole somewhere, dead like Paul?

O'Connor. At headquarters this late?

She looked in the telephone book. Charles V. O'Connor, on Chevy Chase. She wondered irrelevantly what the V stood for. What on earth did it matter?

She dialed. And when his deep voice said in her ear, impersonally, "O'Connor speaking," without thinking she said urgently, "Charles, this is me— Katharine. There's something—"

BY morning at least they were nearly certain that no fatal accident had accounted for Gordon. As soon as the alarm went out, a crew of men started to comb the Rossmore area, paying particular attention to the street excavations up there.

It was a difficult and exhausting search, especially in the dark; but before dawn the searchers were sure that wasn't the answer.

They also had a look in and around that half-built house. The parents stayed home, in their lighted living room, waiting. All they could do, Varallo had asked a few questions.

"Did you ask the boy about what's been troubling him, Mr. Bicknell?"

"Sure," said Bicknell. He sat on the couch, grim-faced, chain-smoking. "But that was pretty obvious, he didn't have to tell me. He isn't getting along so

Staubach Is Named Back Of The Year

By GEORGE C. LANGFORD
United Press International
NEW YORK (AP) — Roger Staubach, the scrambling skipper of Coach Wayne Hardin's powerful Bay State team, today was chosen from an unusual wealth of backfield talent as college football's "back of the year" for 1968 by United Press International.

Feverishly eluding enemy linemen in his own backfield, long-legged broken-field running and pin-point passing have marked the junior Midshipman from Cincinnati clearly as the most exciting player of the year, and perhaps the decade.

Staubach captured the honor in a landslide despite one of the most productive harvests of backfield superstars — particularly in his quarter-backing field. He received 189 out of a possible 292 votes in the nationwide poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

Sherman Lewis, Michigan State's speedy halfback was a distant second, with 20 votes, just two ahead of Baylor passing ace Don Trull, who had 18.

Other leading vote-getters in order were quarterback Billy Lott of Georgia Tech (12), halfbacks Gayle Sayers of Kansas (10) and Paul Marita of Pittsburgh (8). "Roger is the greatest football player I've ever seen," Hardin volunteered, unreservedly. The 6-foot-2, 190-pound Staubach, directed the Middles to a 9-1 record this season, the highest national ranking ever attained by a service academy — second only to champion Texas — and a trip to the Cotton Bowl against the Longhorns to find out, if indeed, Navy isn't the best.

He led the nation much of the season in total offense, breaking the Navy record for one season after only seven games. And in the Middles' ninth game against Duke, he connected on the pass which gave him more completions than any other Navy quarterback in the 84-year football history of the academy.

Staubach's completion percentage hovered near the 70 per cent mark all season — a fantastic average in any league. Roger accomplished all this while wearing a special harness most of the season to protect a painful stretched nerve in his left shoulder.

Rifle Shoots Darts Instead Of Bullets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department is developing a rifle that shoots darts instead of bullets.

A top Pentagon research expert said today the darts are only an inch long and about the thickness of a pencil lead, but are capable of inflicting a gaping wound almost as severe as that caused by a dum-dum bullet.

He explained that the darts have little fins that keep them stabilized in flight. But when they strike flesh, they lose their stability and turn end-over-end in the wound.

The early results were obtained in a project known as "special purpose individual weapon" announced by the Army last February.

The weapon could be used as both a rifle and a shoulder-fired grenade launcher, the Army said. "Fully loaded, it is expected to weigh no more than the current M14 rifle and will significantly increase the effectiveness of the combat soldier."

The Army did not identify the nature of the ammunition. The defense expert who described the tiny darts indicated that "much of the increase in effectiveness would be due to the extreme light weight of the projectiles as compared with regular ammunition."

A soldier could carry thousands of the darts, and could fire them either in separate rounds or in a single, steady stream, he said.

The expert added that the new weapon would not replace the standard rifle, but could prove highly useful for anti-guerrilla purposes.

The Army said the new weapon would be delivered for tests in February next year.
